Stan Young Explains Transit Bill

Property taxation will be substantially increased if the $792 million rapid transit bond measure is passed at next month's election, members of the Berkeley Realty Board were told today.

Realtor Stan Young said as an example, a person possessing a home valued at $100,000 would pay $27 to $30 a month more in taxes. Such taxes, he said, would continue for years, until the rapid transit bonds are retired. And a property owner's taxation would be further increased when the interest on the bonds is included.

Young related to the Berkeley Realty Board members that in case of Albany about 1.3 per cent of that city's property would be removed from the tax rolls if necessary land for the electric trains is to be acquired.

The realtor is a member of the city's advisory group which, over a period of months, has studied the proposed measure. When he spoke this morning on how he felt about the measure, he told his audience, "I'm opposed to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District refused to consider a rail route because, according to them, that would make the trip a few seconds longer into the city. The District has also refused to consider any other alternative than what they propose for Berkeley, Albany and El Cerrito.

Young told the local realtors that the District contemplates a 75-mile rail network within Alameda, Contra Costa and San Francisco counties, 37 stations at which some would provide parking for 150 cars each, and a passenger load of 30,000. The cost to ride the trains from Albany to Montgomery Street in San Francisco would be 50 cents.

During a question and answer session, several realtors gave reactions, including "screaming noise ugly monsters," as to why proposed rapid transit district isn't the most suitable at this time.

From City Council

OPEN LETTER TO ALBANY

The Albany City Council wishes to express their regrets and sympathy to all those who suffered losses or inconveniences in the recent storm.

All conditions brought to the City's attention have been, or will be, carefully evaluated to determine the extent to which the City can help in avoiding recurrence of the particular problems. In most instances flooding conditions resulted from too much rain in too short a period and corrective action will not be practicable. However there are some instances where corrective action will be helpful and such action will be promptly undertaken.

The Council also extends its thanks to the Citizens of Albany for their patience in waiting for the City crews to get to their particular problems, during the hours of the storm, when so many calls were being received, it was impossible to give everyone immediate attention.

Council Goes On Record Opposing 'A'

Joel W. Parker Jr., Mayor of Albany, announced that by unanimous vote of the Council of the City of Albany "citizens are urged to defeat the San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit District Bond Issue."

Also urging "No" on "A" was a resolution adopted by the Byron Chamber of Commerce, signed by Clarence D. Lucas, President, and J. D. Hoell, Secretary-Director. Secretary Hoell issued a statement today saying, "We intend to lend every possible effort towards defeating this issue. The $792,000,000 Bond Issue is only a starter in the cost which would run into billions. It is estimated it would take eight years to build the line, therefore let us assume if the interest rate on the bonds was 3 per cent, the interest for 8 years would be approximately $190,000,000. Before operation commences and any revenue appears, the cost would be $982,000,000 — but still without trains, stations, operating equipment or personnel. The entire transit system may become obsolete before a rapid train would be running. Let's beat this expensive tax grab."

STATE AND RAILROAD ALLOCATE FUNDS FOR BUCHANAN PROJECT

Recently the City of Albany made application to the State Highway Commission for an allocation of $327,775.00 for the construction of a grade separation project on Buchanan Street in the City of Albany. The total cost of the grade separation project is some $764,000.00. Of this amount the Railroad will participate to the extent of 10 per cent of the cost plus $32,050.00, leaving a net cost to be shared by the City and State of $655,550.00.

One-half of this amount or the $327,775.00 has been requested and approved by the State Highway Commission and said money will be derived from the State's $5,000,000.00 Grade-crossing Elimination Program. The remainder of the funds, representing the City of Albany's contributions to the project, will be Major City Streets monies derived from Highway Users Gas Tax Funds and Alameda County Mayor's Formula monies.

The City is hopeful of advertising this project within the next several months. Construction time on the project will be between six months and one year depending upon the season undertaken and weather conditions during the construction sequence.

Trick or Treat Sponsored by Church Council

A different approach to the usual Trick or Treat routine is the UNICEF program sponsored by the World Order Committee with Dr. Georgia Harkness as chairman. The Berkeley-Albany Council of Churches sponsors the project in Albany, Berkeley and Kensington, with Mrs. Charles R. Hancock acting as general chairman assisted by Kensington chairman, Mrs. Bruce Wood, and Albany chairman, Mrs. Cecilia Teach.

Permits have been obtained from the officials in the three cities by representatives of the program and all youth groups are invited to participate. The collection center in Albany will be the YMCA, 921 Kains Avenue. UNICEF representatives will be there to record all containers. The money will be counted at a Berkeley bank and sent on to the United Nations in New York. It will be used to give milk and medicine to starving children around the world.

Among the adults and young adults in Albany already sponsoring groups are: Mrs. Claude H. Friesen, 1331 Marin Avenue; Miss Ella Joyce, 945 Madison; and Miss Nancy Murrow, 1028 Talbot.

Further information about participation can be had by calling Albany chairman Mrs. Teach, TH 3-0707.

MOSAICS DESIGNED BY the pupils of Mrs. Janet Brown in the Albany Evening School are currently on display in the Albany Library.

Governor Brown

Richard Nixon

Byron Rumford

Art Fletcher

Governor Edmund G. Brown, in describing his "Ten Points for Progress" which summarize the Governor's program for California's future well being, said, "These proposals look boldly to the future of this greatest state, and they also recognize the present needs of our more than 17 million citizens."

Councilman Joe Carlevaro, Governor Brown's Albany campaign chairman, will stress this forward-looking program to all Albany citizens.

Richard Nixon has presented the positive programs of action for California which he will follow if he is elected, in a series of statewide broadcasts on "Programs for a Greater California." Excerpts pertinent to California voters are printed below so that Albany voters can decide whether his opinions concur with theirs.

On Welfare: "We must immediately replace the segmented and costly approach to social welfare problems with inter-departmental coordination. For example, unemployment, under-employment and racial discrimination are all sources of the dependency problem. There must be a closer tie between the Department of Employment and the Welfare Department. Some Employment office representatives should work in Welfare Department offices. Adult education facilities and services should be brought into this program to increase employment skills."

The political scene will be a dominant one in minds of Californians during the next two weeks. Realizing this fact, The Times decided to present the four candidates whose policies will be an important factor in Albany's immediate future. In gathering data to publish in this issue, Byron Rumford, Assemblyman of the 17th District, suggested he bring to the Times material covering his background and record and answer any questions concerning action he is taking and intends to take to relieve the critical problems that Albany, as a small community, is facing at the present time.

Art Fletcher, campaigning vigorously for the 17th Assembly District seat held by W. Byron Rumford, strongly attacked Proposition "A," which would create a Bay Area Rapid Transit System.

"Rapid transit is an excellent idea," said Fletcher. "Proposition 'A,' however, represents big towns like San Francisco and Oakland riding roughshod over such fine communities as Albany, El Cerrito and Berkeley."

In dramatizing the key issues of difference between himself and his opponent, the Governor presented ten positive points.

Education: "Our California schools are now 25 years ahead of the rest of the nation, but we will do better. We will increase the state financial assistance to local school districts to relieve the local tax burden, without increasing state taxes. We will stress vocational courses to prepare students for space age occupations."

Full Employment: "More people are now working in California than ever before and I propose to move even more rapidly toward full employment having set a goal of 250,000 new jobs next year. We will expand activity to attract still more industries to California, and increase already swift technological development to secure even more defense contracts."

Economic Growth: "We will develop a Master Plan for Economic Growth to coordinate freeways and public works to industrial growth, aggressively develop new markets for small business and join in state-federal action to achieve maximum exports from California in the Common Market."

Law Enforcement and Anti-subversion: "I will expand the teaching of anti-Communism in our schools in a non-hysterical atmosphere. We must each our children the values of our own free society as well as the dangers of Communism. As Chief Justice Warren points out, no state is doing as well in law enforcement as California. We will add to our tough new narcotics laws, stiffer penalties for illegal sale and use of dangerous drugs."

On Law Enforcement: "California needs a Governor who will work with our dedicated local crime fighters, rather than against them. We must set up a top-level Governor's Council on Crime Prevention and Law Enforcement to coordinate the fight for a safer California, with representatives from all the major state and local law enforcement agencies, working closely with the F.B.I., the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and the other national agencies in the law enforcement field."

On Anti-Communism: "We must greatly improve and make mandatory a program of teaching Communist tactics and the alternatives of freedom in our high schools, using authoritative textbooks and trained teachers. We must also have a voluntary program on Communism available on the adult level."

He emphasized his position with a map. "After the line surfaces on Sacramento Street near Hearst Avenue, it becomes elevated and neatly cuts Albany and El Cerrito in half. This is nothing short of a crime against the worthy homeowners of these two communities."

Albany, already hard-hit financially by having to provide municipal services to University Village, would suffer further. "Tax revenues will drop, and many fine homeowners will suffer unnecessary inconvenience."

Originally, the system was to parallel the freeway. Commuters would ride AC shuttle buses or cars to BARTS stations. This is essentially what happens in Oakland and further south.

MR. AND MRS. WESLEY TAMM

Gayle Earline Patterson Weds Wesley Tamm

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Gordon Tamm are now "at home" on Lexington Avenue, El Cerrito, following their honeymoon at Lake Tahoe.

The bride is the former Gayle Earline Patterson, daughter of the Louis Pattersons of El Cerrito. Mr. and Mrs. Merton Tamm of Washington Avenue, Albany, are the bride's parents.

Rev. Gail Cleland officiated at the couple's evening wedding in Northbrae Community Church.

Gayle wore a bouffant gown of Chantilly lace and cloud veil with a crown of pearls. White baby roses and stephanotis were in her bouquet.

Dressed alike in aqua satin sheaths with chiffon overskirts were Nova Baker, the maid of honor, and bridesmaids Lynda Eppson and Lonnie Marchi. Baby roses and carnations composed their bouquets.

Mel Tamm was his brother's best man. Herb Tamm, cousin of the groom, shared usher's duties with Eliot Klugman.

Both Wes and Gayle are Albany High School graduates. Wes was well known as an outstanding athlete.

ENRICHED PROGRAM FOR YMCA

A more diversified program, including family memberships and increased youth participation in community affairs, is being considered by the main Berkeley YMCA and its branches today.

More than 60 laymen, comprising leaders of Berkeley and Albany business houses, schools and churches, came up with a singular viewpoint at their five-hour conference Sunday.

That is: The YMCA is doing an excellent job in Berkeley and Albany but as times and conditions change the youth-serving organization must always be ready to provide community leadership.

The local YMCA's leaders agreed with the main speaker, Roy Sorenson, general secretary of the San Francisco YMCA, that one of the country's foremost problems is the lack of identity given to teen-agers.

"Far too many of our teen-agers are badly confused over this lack of identity," Sorenson declared. "In almost every other country a boy is given the proper recognition when he becomes a man. But in our country we have about a 10-year spread in which we don't want him to grow up. We're willing to give him a car, tell him to have a good time, but we don't even want to give him a job."

"Our actions, however, only confuse the teen-ager. He wants to become identified to the adult world — he has that right — but we won't let him join."

In their panel sessions, the YMCA's laymen leaders agreed that younger persons should be allowed to render more suggestions, and even sit-in on important decision-making bodies, so that an enlarged and more attractive program can be offered by the local YMCA.

"Sometimes we do forget to involve our kids when decisions are to be made, and you'd be surprised at how they can make the right kind of decisions — if given a chance," said Emery Curtice, principal of Berkeley High School.

The panelists agreed that employment — or rather, the lack of it — is one of the number of problems facing teen-agers, and that, possibly, the YMCA might figure more prominently in this area in the future. The laymen leaders also expressed concern at the great number of youth that still isn't participating in sports and physical-building activities.

George Truitt, YMCA president here, opened the conference with C. H. Wennerberg, superintendent of schools, presiding over the panel remarks. Group leaders of sessions where recommendations were made to enlarge the YMCA program here were headed by Robert R. Porter, vice president of First Savings and Loan; Art Shearer, principal of Willard Junior High School; Carl Dwight, principal of Burbank Junior High School; and William Woolworth, assistant superintendent of Albany schools.

Rumford

On the subject of Rapid Transit, he said: "It is the basic right of a community to decide what is best for them. Leadership from the city, such as San Francisco, can be a dominating factor in a small city can not be adequately represented. It is true we need some type of transportation, but it should be the type with more imagination, especially in the residential areas." He said that just the present plan for homeowners will have to be modified. Other suggestions have been made, he said, utilizing some of the gas tax. But the solution to Rapid Transit, he states firmly, is not one that will endanger the future of a small community.

such as Albany.

Rumford concedes that welfare and the underprivileged areas are a present problem. But he questions whether it is one of the most important issues in THIS area. He has been chided for not taking a more positive stand on this, for not having enough understanding of it. When he is reminded of this, he chuckles. "Understanding!" he says ruefully. "How could I help but understand! I was one of the underprivileged. But under our constitutional equality, any person with determination can rise above that status."

The story of Rumford bears out this philosophy. It is one of opportunity, hard work, responsibility and success. Born in Arizona, Byron Rumford sold newspapers to earn money while attending elementary and secondary schools in Phoenix. He moved to the Bay Area in 1927 and worked his way through the University of California College of Pharmacy. In later years, he returned to the University and in 1948 received his Bachelor of Arts Degree and then a Master of Arts Degree in Public Administration in 1959.

Assemblyman Rumford, now Secretary of the State Democratic Central Committee, was first elected to the Legislature in 1948. His record in legislation includes the introduction and successful passage of the bill which established the Fair Employment Practices Commission; the Bay Area Pollution Control District; the introduction and successful passage of the bill which provided $3,000,000 for free polio vaccine for millions of California citizens; the Tuberculosis Control Bill, which provides funds for new and improved services in TB bacteriology; and he introduced and led the passage of the bill eliminating sales tax on prescription drugs.

As a member of the Committee on Government Organization, he participated in the recommendations for the reorganization of the State's records classification and storage system, in the reorganization of Board of Equalization and the establishment of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Department.

He has worked for adequate assistance to needy children and adults, and he has participated in programs to return the physically disabled, the alcoholic, the narcotic addict, the mentally ill and the retarded to a full and useful life. He introduced legislation to aid citizens displaced from their homes in eminent domain proceedings.

Rumford's community affiliations include memberships in the American Political Association, American Pharmaceutical Association, California Optometric Association (Honorary), Commonwealth Club, Masonic Lodge, Berkeley Commons Club, Berkeley Chapter American Red Cross, and a Life Membership in the Parent - Teachers Association (awarded in 1959).

The California Legislature honored him as one of its most outstanding members in 1953 when he was selected as a Citizen Ambassador of the United States as a representative of our Department of State to tour West Germany.

At the present time Assemblyman Rumford is enthusiastically involved with a long range study plan with the State Department of Health involving the resultant effect of sprays, insecticides and dusting powders on the health of Californians, the preservation of wild life, and conservation. But his main concern, he says, is listening to the voice of "his people" — his District.

of non-teaching duties insofar as possible.

"Our state now pays welfare or institutional care costs for 25 per cent of the young people who drop out of school. It would be better to spend this money on tailoring education for their needs, than to have to spend it after they are unemployed or in trouble with the law.

"The State Constitution should be amended to allow local school bond issues to be approved by a simple majority of the voters. At this time, the State can float a bond issue for school support with a simple majority vote, but local school districts are required to get a two-thirds vote.

"I am firmly opposed to Federal Aid to Education. From my experience in Congress and as Vice President, I know that Federal Aid to Education will soon lead to Federal Control of Education. And I do not want bureaucrats in Washington, D.C. to tell us how or what to teach our children here in California."

On Employment: "California must have one million new jobs in the next four years to provide employment for the people coming into our State and for the nearly 400,000 Californians now out of work. Jobs will be made by initiating a 'California for New Business Investment', by creating a climate that is fair to both management and labor, and by standing up and fighting for California's share of foreign markets."

On New Industry: "There is no excuse whatsoever for California not to lead the nation in new jobs through new investments. We have the skilled manpower. We have the resources. Now all we need is a new administration that will say to investors, 'The welcome mat is out. Bring your new plants to California. Make your new jobs in California. It's a great place to live and a great place to do business.'"

On Freeways: "In considering future freeways, I propose the following procedures in each case: Hearings at the locale of the proposed project, conducted by an impartial examiner; no rights of way should be condemned until a highway project has received final approval; an end to threats of withdrawal of highway funds or promises of extra highway expenditures to solicit local agreement for freeway routing; and no funds for any highway public relations activities other than purely informational programs."

On Civil Rights: "It is simply not in the best interests of our State to deny jobs to any Californian because of race, color, religion or any other factor that has nothing to do with how well a man can do a job."

 Governmental Efficiency: "I held the state tax line since and not spent one penny in of revenue. Taxes have cut by 14 million dollars. will continue with the government reorganization now in progress which will save hundreds of thousands of dollars in operating more efficient."

Agriculture: "I will actively promote the export of California products to the Common Market. I will press for early completion of water projects and stronger representation in Washington to protect the farm's present competitive position."
 Human Rights and Security: "Our present welfare system makes rehabilitation — not charity. We will remove even more numbers of welfare recipients from the rolls by stepping vocational training. We will give greater protection to the elderly and enact new legal protection against racial and religious discrimination."

Natural Resources: "California is now building the largest water project in the history of man. It will increase camps to fight fires in wilderness areas. We will wage an all-out assault on air pollution."

Recreation: "We will launch construction of a scenic highway in conjunction with new beaches and parks. Sportsmen will be given the most possible access to resorts along the water project. We will protect waters from contamination and continue to aid in recreational sites."

Future Planning: "We must utilize every available resource in orderly planning for the future and must respect home rule of local communities in all cases. We will assist urban redevelopment by relocating families displaced by freeways. We will cooperate fully with local governments to eliminate slums and congestion in our major cities." Governor Brown pointed out his 1959 eight point program under the law of the State, and he is as strongly committed to these ten points for progress.

explain to veterans' families this one fact: you need NOT call the so-called contract funeral director to receive your full benefits.

Throughout the years, many veterans' families have found that our service is unusually complete, that our assistance in obtaining gov-
